

CENTRAL CITY BICYCLE TRIPS ACROSS THE WILLAMETTE

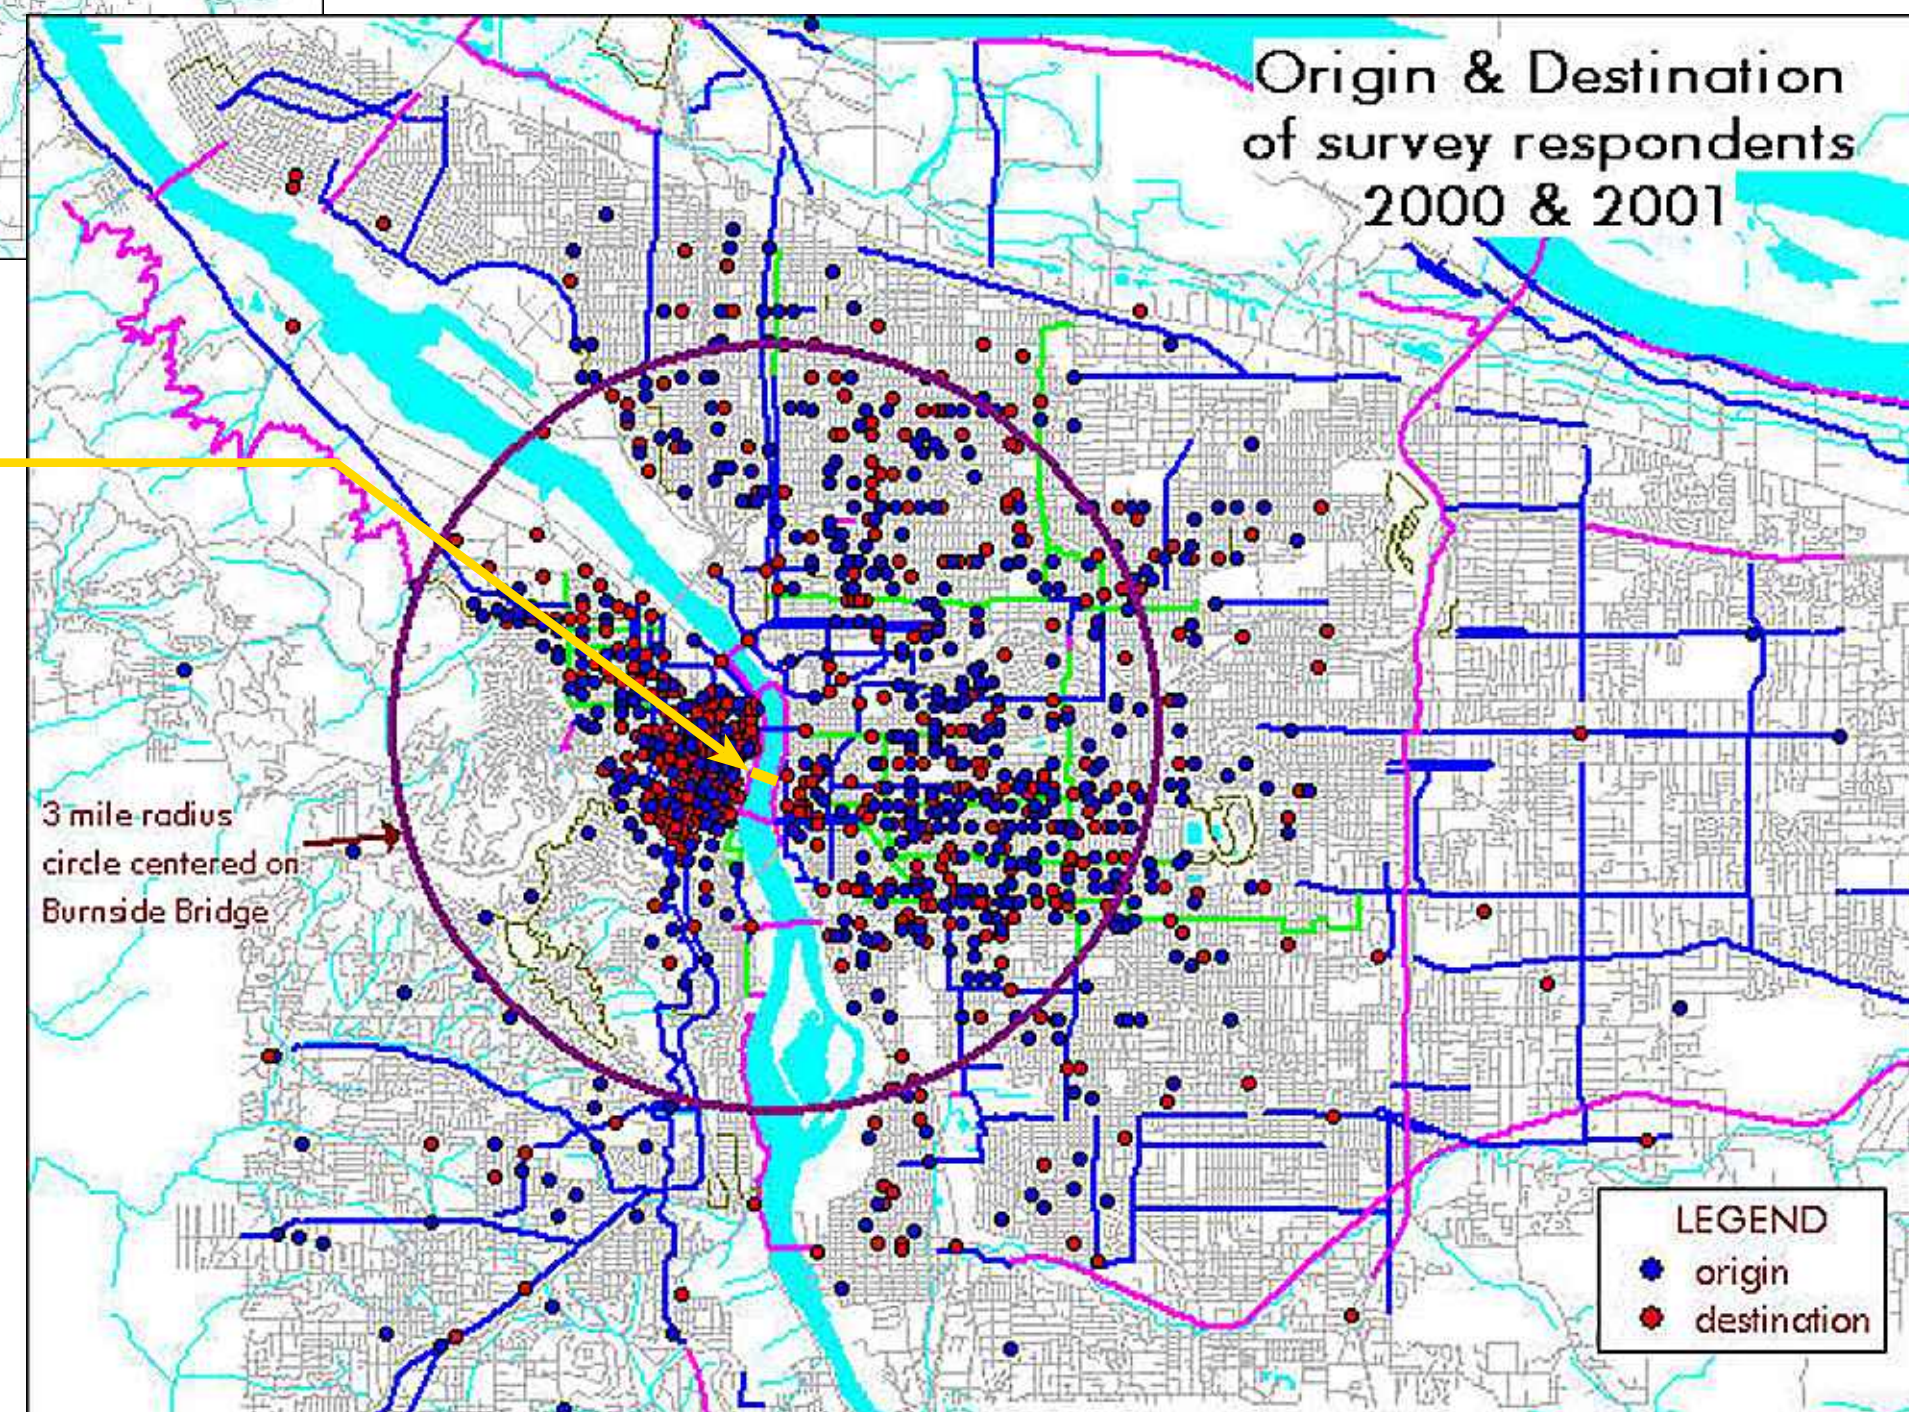

In the Summers since 2000, peak hour cyclists crossing the Willamette River Bridges have been handed survey forms querying them about their riding habits as well as about their most recent trips.

These two maps display some of that information. The top image shows the cross-streets nearest the respondent's home address. The bottom image shows the cross-streets nearest the origin and destination of the bicycle trip they were making when handed the survey form.

This information is based on the responses of approximately 900 people in the 2000 and 2001 surveys.
